■ Synopsis

On a jet-black night, a spy breaks into the National Police Agency to steal confidential data belonging to several national intelligence agencies, including the British MI6, German BDN, and American CIA and FBI. Just before the spy can steal the data, Tohru Amuro arrives with his secret police officers. The spy makes a getaway in a stolen car, but Amuro catches up on the highway. Before they are about to cause a huge wreck, bullets from the rifle of the FBI's Shuichi

Akai rip through the spy's car, sending it careening off the highway and falling...

The next day, Conan and his friends meet up at the Tohto Aquarium, which is celebrating its re-opening. Under the centerpiece of the park, a massive Ferris wheel, they find a good-looking woman standing alone and injured. Conan notices that she has different-colored irises, also known as "odd eyes".

However, the woman is suffering from memory loss so severe that she doesn't even know her own name. The phone she is carrying is broken. Conan and his friends promise to stay with her and help her recover her memory. In the shadows, Vermouth has overheard everything. Stepping back from the scene, she takes out a silencer and after it is attached, speaks into the microphone: "That's what I intend to do, Gin."

Dark memories open the door to the showdown battle!

Staff and cast members include director: Kobun Shizuno, screenwriter: Takeharu Sakurai, music: Katsuo Ohno, main character Conan Edogawa: Minami Takayama, Ran Mori: Wakana Yamazaki, Kogoro Mori: Rikiya Koyama, and other regular members.

As a member of the Committee, TMS will continue to focus on customer satisfaction and branding for Detective Conan: The Darkest Nightmare, to make this movie version worthy of the memorial year of the franchise's 20 years on TV and film.
